Head of Tudor House

Tudor House is a Preparatory Campus of The King's School located on over one hundred acres of farm and forested land at Moss Vale in the southern highlands of New South Wales. The school currently offers a Pre-kinder to Year 6 education for boys with an emphasis on adventure and discovery learning in a rural setting.

From the beginning of 2017 Tudor House will enrol female students in the Pre-kinder classes and then progressively through the school in the succeeding years. The School Council believes that the Tudor House approach to holistic education encompassing adventure and discovery learning which has served young boys well for generations is just as attractive and beneficial to girls.

The school will retain its focus as one of the few boarding schools for primary aged students in Australia with a new emphasis on the provision of casual and weekly boarding options for parents. Academically, it is the intention of the school to apply for candidature to offer the Primary Years Programme (PYP) of the International Baccalaureate in line with the Preparatory School at King's Parramatta Campus.
